

Doelger Story: Hot Dog Stand to Construction Empire

By FRANK LAPIERRE

To simply say that multi-millionaire developer Henry Doelger is a self-made man would be a gross understatement.

His is a typical Horatio Alger story, a story that started with a street corner hot dog stand in San Francisco and ended last week with the sale of the final apartment building of his company for more than $30 million.

In between, the man who likes to be referred to as "Henry Doelger Builder" has built some 35,000 single-family houses and more than 5,000 apartment units and four shopping centers in San Francisco, Pacific, Daly City and the East Bay.

Doelger is an uncanny businessman, his associates and colleagues in the development game point out. This "sixth sense" has aided Doelger throughout his lengthy real estate career, often to the chagrin of competitors.

A case in point was the sale of the vast 8,000-acre Princeton-by-the-Sea development to the Deane & Deane Company.

Deane & Deane is now favored with still opposition from conservationist groups which do not want the Coastside to become what they call "another Coney Island."

Doelger did not become an overnight success in the building business. He is praised by many for providing good, solid homes at a price people can afford. An equal number of people, however, accuse him of creating urban blight with "ticky tacky" tract homes.

But Daly City Mayor Bernard "Bud" Lyett, longtime resident of the city which comes in for most of the criticism, says if people didn't want to live in the city and did not like what Doelger built during his 27 years in the Westlake section of San Francisco, it would still be sand dunes, cabbage patches and hog farms.

The Westlake section of Daly City, which includes two shopping centers — Westlake and Skyline Plaza — could easily be called "Doelgerville." For it was here that Doelger and his brother, John, built thousands of apartments and homes and amassed a fortune.

Doelger's hot dog stand was at the corner of Seventh and Lincoln avenues in the "hood" of San Francisco some 33 years ago. So barren was the area that Hollywood film companies shot desert scenes there. Hot dogs, with or without mustard, was a business Doelger did not relish.

In 1922 he joined his late brother, Frank Doelger in the real estate business.

After one year, Henry figured he knew enough about the business to start his own — which he did in 1923.

Rumors circulated in the city the same year that the Golden State Theater would build out on 15th Avenue. Working on a hunch, Henry began buying up lands around the area. The theater was eventually built and Henry Doelger Builder was on his way.

There was only one way to sell homes out in the Sunset District of San Francisco in those days, you hammered a few nails along with the carpenters and when a prospective buyer came along, off came the coveralls and, presto, instant real estate salesman.

That is what Henry did! He built 25 homes on 39th Avenue in 1926, his first year in business. Business increased as the population expanded and

Stiff Opposition to BOC Redevelopment at Meet

The stiffest opposition yet to redevelopment in the eastern sector of Daly City was experienced last night when more than 200 residents of "Old Daly City" stormed City Hall to protest the project.

Led by internationally known criminal attorney Charles Garry, the overflow crowd showed support as their representatives denounced the redevelopment agency and its 25-member citizens advisory committee during an unscheduled hour and a half-long session.

The Redevelopment Agency and its staff is composed of the five-member city council and some members of the Daly City staff.

The residents — some property owners, some tenants — along with supporters from other areas, blasted city hall for pushing forward with redevelopment with what they allege is not a representative body made up of homeowners, tenants, low-income and minority persons from the so-called "target area."

But City Manager David Rowe, who is also executive director of the RA, pointed out the project is only now in the study stage. It has not progressed past that point. When and if it does, steps will be taken by the council to assure the laws concerning such projects are strictly complied with, Rowe said.

The group was not satisfied with Rowe's assurances of equitable and fair treatment. They had obviously come not only to hand over a petition asking the agency to stop doing whatever it was doing immediately, but to see and hear attorney Garry in action.

They were apparently not disappointed. Garry, as has become his strategy in courtroom across the nation, ripped into the council and city staff for what he declared was "discrimination."

He pointed up the fact that

Daly City's last census indicated a minority population of 31.9 per cent and the present advisory committee, appointed by the agency, included only four minority persons out of 25 members.

Quoting sections from the Health and Safety codes dealing with redevelopment, Garry declared representation from within the redevelopment area was required.

And he demanded the agency cease operation until such time as a policy is established to include these low-income persons and racial minorities on the advisory committee.

Assisted by San Mateo County Legal Aid Society Attorney Craig H. Scott, Garry also asked the agency to adopt an "affirmative action plan" for the hiring of racial minority persons and low income persons in all stages of the program.

Scott and Garry did not agree with Rowe's statement that the advisory committee was "broadly representative" of the city as a whole.

Rowe noted that there have been no boundary lines drawn as yet outlining where, or even if, redevelopment will become a reality.

Because of the present status of the project in the city, Rowe felt the makeup of the committee was a good representation from the overall population.

At one point in the session, Garry and Mayor Bernard "Bud" Lyett entered into an exchange which ended when Garry loudly declared, "And I know you, too, Mr. Mayor. You're a big bag of wind."

Lyett ignored the insult, which was greeted by shouts and catcalls from the audience. City Attorney Albert Polonsky, later commenting on Garry's threat to take the matter into Federal court if the Redevelopment Agency intends to continue without change in its makeup, said he thinks "(Garry) is premature with his allegations at this time."

"We intend to, and will abide by the law at each step," Polonsky said.

The mayor formally accepted a petition signed by some 904 residents of the city, presented by Conrad Pavellias, co-chairman of the Original Daly City Protective Association.

The association was formed about a year ago. It claims 830 membership among residents of the area adjacent to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station on Knowles Avenue.

Among those persons who presented opinions on redevelopment to the agency: Pearl Hastings, John D'India, co-chairman of the OODCA, Rev. Charles Hamilton, Calvary Hill Baptist Church, and Rev. Hosey Spears.

They came from all over the area to take part in the dedication of Gellert Park Saturday.

Letters poured in from well-wishers, including President Nixon, Governor Reagan and various Housing and Urban Development officials.

It is the largest city park to begin development in San Mateo County in many years.

The construction timetable is broken down into three phases, starting immediately.

Estimated cost of the first phase, which will consist of landscaping, grading, installation of sprinkler systems, lawn planting, parking lot, basketball and tennis courts, horseshoe pits, is $125,000, with Daly City providing $65,500 and the federal government matching this amount.

Phase two will cost $106,000 — $65,000 from Daly City and $41,000 in federal funds. Fencing, tennis courts, basketball courts, tot-logs, barbecue pits, picnic area, baseball diamond backstops, golf driving cages, horseshoe pits, playground apparatus and landscaping will be built during this phase.

Both projects are scheduled for completion in August of 1973.

A recreation building costing some $550,000 — funded by matching monies from city-federal agencies — is scheduled for phase three. When completed the park will also feature a library, a station and recreation building.

Following last week's dedication, QFT market president Leo Musso donated broiled hot dogs to visitors. Bud Getchell handed out Dr. Pepper Soft drinks.

Serramonte Homeowners' Association members Mrs. Sue de Vincenzi and Mrs. Dorothy Jercock supervised the cooking handled by a score of volunteers.

It is inappropriate to put a "Q" zone where the freeway is planned," said Raggio. "It's slightly dishonest," he added, pointing out that such a rezoning would be arbitrary, confusing and subject to court litigation.

Gellert Park Dedicated

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Gellert Park in Daly City — the new 21-acre recreational area created by builders Carl and Fred Gellert — was dedicated Saturday.

It was not dedicated as a living monument to either of the Gellert brothers, but to their parents, Charles and Wilhelmina Gellert — pioneers of the Bay Area.

As Daly City Councilman Louis J. Papan recounted during ceremonies adjacent to the park site, the elder Gellerts were "typical of the people who endured untold hardships to emigrate to America to lead lives and raise families free and unfettered from the controlling restrictions of the Old World."

Charles was born in Dresden, Germany, in 1863 and served in the Medical Corps in the Franco-Russian War of 1910. He also served a short time in the German Army before the turn of the century.

Coming to America, he worked in a Pittsburgh, Pa., steel mill where he acquired his citizenship papers.

Next it was gold fever that brought Charles to Idaho and after a disheartening attempt at gold mining, came to San Francisco in 1880. He drove a milk wagon in downtown San Francisco in those days, although he was a building craftsman by trade.

Later, he was employed to help build the "Alma House" today known as San Francisco General Hospital. From the end of the horse-drawn trolley line at Market and Van Ness, Charles walked to the construction site.

Charles died in 1926. His wife, Wilhelmina, was born in Riga, Latvia (Russia) in 1869.

A master of four languages — English, German, Russian and French — she was considered an extremely brilliant woman. She worked hard and saved enough money to come to America.

She was in demand as a private tutor and taught at Columbia University in New York. Because of ill health, however, she had to give up her duties at Columbia and was advised by doctors to "go west."

In San Francisco she met and married Charles. The couple had five children.

One of the children died in infancy. Surviving today are Fred and Carl Gellert and their six sons, Edith, Steven and Marie Simpson, sons, daughters and grandchildren.

In addition to the park site, the Gellert brothers have donated, through respective funds, some $82,500 during the past seven years to be used for the city's recreational programs.

"There is absolutely no strings attached to where this money is spent," Mayor Bernard Lyett has said in accepting the donations on behalf of the city.

The money has thus far been used to purchase equipment for parks, development of lot lots around the city and capital improvements in the city's parks.

Attending the function were dignitaries from local, state and federal government offices; civic leaders and some 400 citizens.

During the afternoon, a full program of activities sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department and Serramonte Homeowners' Association was held for young and old.

Pacifica Girl Injured in Bruno Crash

A 16-year-old Pacifica girl, Theresa Mae Chavez, is in "stable" condition today at Chope Community Hospital, San Mateo, after sustaining multiple injuries when the car she was driving collided head-on with another vehicle in San Bruno Saturday.

Also injured in the collision was James Vandana, 17, of Richmond, a passenger in the vehicle driven by the girl. He is reported in good condition at Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City. Another passenger, Sergio Gonzales, 19, of 609 Mariner Drive, Pacifica, was not injured.

Police said Miss Chavez, of 420 Lombard Drive was traveling eastbound on Highland Drive on the wrong side of the road at a high rate of speed when her car collided with a vehicle driven by Herbert H. Russell II, of 3540 Pacific Heights Boulevard, San Bruno.

According to police, the two passengers had been hitchhiking and were picked up by the Chavez girl.

More About The Doelger Story

folks began moving into the "suburbs" of the city. But the Great Depression had Doelger hard, as it did everyone else.

For 18 months he gave up trying to build homes, let alone sell them. No one had any money.

By 1932 business was on the upswing again for Doelger. He built houses that are standing in good repair today along 31st Avenue.

Between 1934 and 1940 the fellow who started with a modest dog stand was America's biggest homebuilder. Doelger was doing what some builders had considered impossible — building two homes a day. By today's standards this is a simple feat.

Doelger City they called the area that stretched from 27th to 28th avenues between Kirkham and Quintana. Next was Golden Gate Heights on 15th and 16th avenues.

World War II came along and Henry offered his services to the Army Corp of Engineers. He was assigned to build defense housing in the Bay Area, specifically in Oakland and South San Francisco where some 3,000 such units were constructed by trying to build homes, let alone sell them. No one had any money.

The defense housing projects are currently under planning for replacement 27 years after Doelger built them. Along with brother John, who retired from the company three years ago, Henry built homes along MacArthur Boulevard between Oakland and San Leandro. He returned to the Sunset and Richmond districts after the war and built 3,000 apartments.

Open space suitable for housing was becoming harder to get. Turning a deaf ear to realtors who advised not to build in Daly City because no one would possibly want to buy a home that far away from downtown San Francisco, Henry purchased 1,350 acres from the Spring Valley Water Company in 1945.

Swamps, gullies, bog ranches, cabbage patches, barren sandy and foggy windy, biting cold greeted the builder. Friends predicted Henry had been "had" when he bought the property.

More than two decades after he started pouring concrete in Westlake, mapping streets and pounding nails, an order's community of more than 22,000 people have moved in. Normally, developers like to be remembered after they have gone by naming a street after themselves.

There is no "Doelger Boulevard" in Daly City. Many people think there should be a street named for the brothers. His building days now behind him, Henry said he will now look around for a shipbuilder to construct another yacht — his fourth.

Asked what he will name the yacht, Henry replied: "The Westlake IV."

said that if necessary he would go to court.

Commissioner Leon Miller said the official body had an obligation to make the determination as to what would be the "highest and best use" of the property.

"To me, this 'O' zone is the highest and best use for this area," he said.

Raggio responded that if the commission were so altruistic it should have also recommended an "O" zoning for a 3.17-acre parcel they rezoned for proposed townhouses that residents unsuccessfully opposed earlier in the evening.

The "O" zone ordinance is designed to "preserve a rural and natural atmosphere in an urban area or development, to hold for future generations open space to preserve the environment."

Some of the uses permitted in an "O" zone are golf courses, riding and hiking trails, public and private parks, private recreation facilities that are part of any development, or any uses which in the opinion of the planning commission could be compatible with the area.

The purpose of Phillips' presentation was to show the need for preserving Crestwood Canyon intact.

Phillips, incidentally, is studying the canyon as part of a science research class project, and has been given a Heaert Fund grant to aid in this project.

He said his intention is to have an ecological report of his own prepared at the same time the state submits the environmental impact report it is required to submit prior to any work toward construction of Interstate 380 through the canyon to Pacifica.

"It is an eco-community. The whole thing must remain intact," said Phillips. "It cannot be divided into sections (such as a state portion for a freeway and a city portion for a man-made park). Each part is essential for the whole canyon."

Stressed Phillips.

During the slide presentation, he remarked that "the canyon itself is one big educational experience." And he also pointed out that city trucks had been dumping debris in the canyon, "in an effort to bury garbage."

My purpose in stating this, said Phillips, "is to make the point that we all should help keep it (the canyon) clean — even the city government."

Several other residents made impassioned pleas favoring the rezoning.

Assistant City Attorney Dermott Fitzgerald told the commissioners that if it was determined their action was arbitrary "it won't stand up."

Commissioner Miller said it was time to take a stand, and made the motion for recommending the rezoning. It passed on a 6-1 vote, with Commissioner Henry Henning abstaining. He is employed by the state.

In the three-way fight, Rother suffered severe eye and head injuries, police said. Decker and the boy allegedly pummeled and kicked Rother in the body and head.

Francisco, the reason that a South San Francisco man was not appointed officer in charge was that the top two officials are not in the running.

The next man in line, the assistant postmaster, is retiring in July. The superintendent of mails has indicated that he also plans to retire in the near future.

Under the new procedures, neither the local Republican Central Committee nor the local congressman has a hand in making recommendations, as in the past. Instead, a regional management selection board will interview each candidate and review his records. Preference is given to those in the same post office. If no local candidate fully qualifies, then the board can look outside the city, or even the entire 11-state region.

Commission OKs Townhouses

San Bruno planning commission Monday night on a 5-2 vote favored recommending to the city council that the controversial 3.17-acre parcel on the west side of Sneath Lane and Monterey Drive be rezoned for townhouse use.

Commissioner James Hensel made the motion amid promises from opponents that they would initiate a referendum to prevent it.

"I'm disappointed with the tone of this meeting," said Hensel to the obviously anti-townhouse audience. He reiterated the press for criticizing the planning commissioners for their indecisiveness on the Crystal Springs Terrace project.

"Tonight we've been threatened," he said. Both Al Watt, president of the Portola Highlands Homeowners Association, and Dick Griffith, former councilman, noted for his anti-community stand, promised that if the rezoning is effective a referendum will begin.

The matter of rezoning still has to go before the city council for final action.

Commissioner Hensel further charged that the Portola Highlands Homeowners Association and said so. It is the outcome was "controlled by a select Portola Highlands I can't see where the neighborhood has been convinced it is in their best interest," said Hensel.

Remov had earlier noted that "it would have been wonderful" to have met with the homeowners association. He said that he might have convinced them that his proposal would be better for the area than standard single-family residential lots.

"My point is that the density is less (with his project) than for single family homes," he said.

While Remov gave a slide presentation concerning his proposal there were catcalls from the audience.

He said all planned 26 units would be three-bedroom, having 1,200-to-1,400 square feet. Selling price would be "in excess of $15,000." All units would be individually owned with an undivided interest in the common areas such as a proposed park.

"It's surreal to see it (another attempt to develop the area) happening over and over again," was another response.

"This community doesn't want any more density," was a familiar refrain.

"It won't be fun sitting on my back porch anymore," said a man who felt the project would obstruct his view.

Battle Over Apartment Complex in Bruno

A 5.177 acre parcel of undeveloped land has become the latest battleground in the off-again, on-again familiar fight in San Bruno between apartment developer and single-family residents.

This particular parcel, located along the western side of Sneath Lane and Monterey Drive, is scheduled for a public hearing Monday night before the city's planning commissioners.

The request is for a zoning change from single-family residential use (R-1) to a modified residential use (R-1-D) that would allow construction of townhouses.

Residents of the Portola Highlands area have fought various rezoning proposals of this property for several years, and promise they will oppose this latest effort.

"The property is zoned R-1 and should stay that way," says Al Waite, president and chairman of the executive board of the Portola Highlands Homeowners Association.

"We don't object to using the property as it is currently zoned," said Waite. He added quite emphatically that there is no room for negotiation for other uses as far as the homeowners group is concerned.

"We've had this battle too often," he said. "We feel the elected officials should represent their electorate. Before any property is rezoned, it should have the support of property owners in that particular area."

"We don't want a builder from Redwood City and an architect from Albany telling the people of San Bruno what they should have."

That letter was answered by Waite about a week later, after he had met with members of the homeowners' association board of directors.

Rimov is dismayed at the fact the homeowners wouldn't give him the opportunity to discuss his proposal with them. He is convinced his proposal for 28 "single-family ownership" townhouse units, planned as part of a cluster home concept would be more beneficial to the area than a single-family residential lot-by-lot development.

Rimov says that a bluff would prevent residents living above the proposed project from even knowing the townhouses were there. He also stressed that the development would include dedication of a mini-park for neighborhood use. He says the property is not suitable for regular single-family development because of odd-shaped lots, where his park would be.

The architect sent a letter to Waite last month indicating the homeowners' association should be given an opportunity to review his preliminary plan before he took it to the planning commissioners, "so that the very best thoughts from your association might be considered and incorporated in any application we submit."

Waite's letter also pointed out there were "no objections to construction as R1 with the following conditions, convenand restrictions of record for the Portola Highlands Subdivision as imposed by your community could be funded with 80 percent federal aid."

The homeowner executive also pointed out that according to tax rolls in Redwood City, the property in question is assessed at about $5,000. He noted that using the common 25 per cent market value ratio, the undeveloped property would be worth about $20,000.

Waite said it might be to the city's advantage to buy the property.

City Planner Jack Mulgoney says he is checking into the possibility of federal aid for a combination library and civil defense facility. He also said "this doesn't mean that would be the site."

And according to Mulgoney, assessed value on property is a far cry from the appraised "fair market value" of property. He estimated that property in San Bruno sells for about $50,000 at acre.

North County Flood Relief Still at Least 5 Years Away

South San Francisco's business and civic leaders showed their concern for the flood problems as they packed to overflowing the meeting room at Bartolucci's Restaurant Wednesday.

Chamber of Commerce members listened to and argued with Lt. Col. Edgar J. Mixan of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, who brought them up to date on the Corps' 17-year-long travail in trying to solve the problem of Colma Creek floods.

At stake is the future of South San Francisco's entire industrial district, plus a good deal of its east of El Camino Real residential area.

The chief criticism of the questioners seemed to be: Why has so little been done since 1955?

Mixan reported that the Corps was first asked to do a study after the disastrous floods of 1955. They came forth with a plan in 1962 showing five reservoirs to be built in the headwaters of Colma Creek and its tributaries. Before they were able to get anything started, however, three of the reservoir sites were subdivided.

That has been the story of the last 17 years, the colonel told his critical audience. The Corps just has not been able to keep up with the fast-moving changes in the area.

The Colma Creek flood plain, meanwhile, containing much of South San Francisco's industrial area, has become so built up that it is almost impossible to do anything without knocking down some of the buildings which the flood control project is supposed to protect. All that is possible in much of that area, he said, is "a solution in concrete," in which the existing canal would be enlarged.

The report will be completed

Cohn-Diestler

Sacramento is the first address for Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Diestler (Deborah Lynn Cohn) who were married at the Hills-

The newlids were felicitated after the services at the Peninsula Golf and Country Club.

Deborah said her promises in a snow white short sleeve gown detailed with appliques and accented with a train. Her attendants were dressed alike in long snow white voile gowns and white picture hats with green trim.

Patty Wight was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Julie Ann Cohn, the bride's sister; Delaine Diestler, the bridegroom's sister; Dana Gabriel and Shirley Nachman.

Dennis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Diestler of Millbrae. He asked Gregg Hargis to be his best man and Steven Cohn, Deborah's brother, seated guests with Wayne Diestler, Henri Blanc, Daniel Mahle and Jim Kirkbride.

Dog Nearly Dies From Scratching Skin Raw

Last year, a skin problem made our dog Heidi want to scratch raw. I thought we'd have to put her to sleep, she was so miserable. Then a neighbor told me about Sulfadene. I put Sulfadene all over Heidi. She stopped scratching and soon she was completely healed. It's not over-the-counter and it's not a steroid. I'm convinced Sulfadene saved her life.

Mrs. L. Schrank, Arlington Hts., Ill.

Sulfadene is a scientific liquid medication you apply to your dog's skin. It works quickly to relieve the most ferocious itching, almost instantly. Sulfadene is especially made to cling to the skin to go on working to kill infectious bacteria. Sulfadene also promotes healing of open sores and raw spots so hair can grow back. Used by kennels and veterinarians, feel safe about Sulfadene medication for dogs' skin problems.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.
Now that the kids are back in school are you finding time to do all the things you dreamed of doing during your busy summer vacation?
Such as: rereading War and Peace, knitting a cover for the VW, practicing your pole vaulting and learning spot welding. What? Those aren't the things you were dreaming about? How about, taking a two-hour nap every day, watching the TV programs you like, long, unhurried chats on the phone and not, repeat not, cleaning the ovens until the week after Thanksgiving?
Sounds delightful doesn't it? Delightful, but highly unlikely, let's get back to reality.
What's for dinner tonight?

TUNA SCALLOPED POTATOES
3 cups peeled, thinly sliced baking potatoes
3/4 cup sliced onions
1 can (7 oz.) tuna, drained and flaked
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
1 cup plain yogurt
1 1/2 Tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Preheat oven to 350-degrees. Butter a shallow 1 1/2 quart baking dish.
In baking dish alternate layers of the three cups sliced potatoes, three-fourths cup sliced onions and tuna. In a bowl combine the one can soup, one cup yogurt, one and one-half tablespoons flour and half teaspoon salt; pour over all. Bake 1 hour and 15-30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Sprinkle the one cup cheese over top; return to oven 5 to 10 minutes. Serves 4-6.

If the afternoon nap and TV viewing limits cooking time, try this very easy and quick way to prepare chicken.

CHICKEN L'ORANGE
1 frying chicken
salt and pepper
1 can frozen orange juice
Cut the chicken into serving pieces, sprinkle with salt and pepper and arrange in a lightly greased shallow baking dish. Pour the concentrated orange juice over the chicken and bake in 350-degree oven about one hour, or until chicken is tender. During the last 15 minutes of cooking time turn the chicken pieces over and stir around in the orange juice so they will be well coated.

WITH CHICKEN L'Orange you may serve buttered rice or if you want something a little more fancy, this noodle casserole.

CREAMED NOODLES
1 12-ounce package noodles
1 cup sour cream
1 cup cream style cottage cheese
dash of pepper
1/4 cup chopped chives
Prepare the 12 ounces noodles as directed on package. Drain and combine with the one cup each sour cream and cottage cheese, three-fourths teaspoon salt, pepper and fourth cup chopped chives. Pour into lightly buttered casserole and bake in 350-degree oven for about 30 minutes or until noodles are hot and bubbly. Serves 6.

Campfire Girls Start New Activities

Camp Fire Girls have started the school year off with several successful activities and have more events planned for October.

Daily City and Pacific Junior High Discovery Club groups joined other Junior High Discovery Club girls for a swim and games day at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Fleishacker.

Mrs. Fleishacker has served as national Camp Fire president and is still active with the organization.

While the girls were swimming, playing volleyball, and learning about their junior high program, their advisors were learning about their role in the organization and having their questions about Discovery Club answered.

Last weekend the Daily City Junior High Girls along with groups from San Francisco journeyed to the Paradise Pines resort area near Sonoma for a weekend campout. They cooked their meals over an open fire, worked on their outdoor skills and went swimming.

Adult members of the District VI committee which comprises the area of Daily City through Pacific are busy readying themselves for the luncheon and installation ceremony.

to be held at Nicks Rockaway Beach restaurant on October 9 at noon, with a no-host cocktail hour from 11 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. Robert Perruget is in charge of the event and has sent invitations to all Camp Fire leaders asking them to also invite their assistants and sponsors or anyone interested in the Camp Fire Girls organization.

Luncheon will be a pot luck meal provided by existing members of the District Committee.

Each person attending is asked to take a hand-crafted item which will be auctioned off with the proceeds going to the sustaining membership fund. Awards for outstanding service to Camp Fire girls by the adult volunteers will also be announced.

The following day, October 10, Daily City leaders will hold their meeting at the home of Mrs. Joseph Acquaspace at 119 Avalon at 10 a.m.

A big event coming up for Camp Fire Girls and all their families will be Camp Fire Days at Marine World on October 28, from 9:30 to 5:30.

All Camp Fire girls and their families will enter the park at reduced prices. There will be a special opening ceremony at the water, ski and boat show theatre and then people will be free to wander around and see the jungle beasts, whales or even go for a ride on an elephant or camel.

This event will be for girls from all the Northern California councils.

Mrs. Frank Burns, the show chairman, announces that the show will be held in the Little Theatre of the New Fine Arts and Media Center. Much of the equipment for the media center was made possible by fund raising events planned and carried out by the Mercy Guild.

Mrs. Burns reports that this year the proceeds of the event will be used to assist with the construction of tennis courts on the campus.

Last minute reservations may be made with Mrs. Dale Johnson, 28 Lake Forest Drive, Daly City. Tickets are being sold for $6 per person.

TICKETS are available for Italian Night, the dinner-dance being staged as a pre-festival event at our Lady of Mercy Church.

Mrs. James "Galli" (Murray) and Albert Modena, the co-chairmen of the event, have named Mrs. Charles Boerio and Mrs. Dominic Oliveri, the reservations chairmen. Anyone wishing tickets, which are available at $5 per person, should contact Mrs. Boerio, 755-7834, or Mrs. Oliveri, as soon as possible.

Others assisting Mrs. Murray and Modena with the "fun-event" are Mrs. David Baciocco and Mrs. Raymond Porcino. Robert Richert and Edward Avanzino are in charge of refreshments.

Plans call for dancing, to the music of the Al Borelli band, to begin at 8 p.m. and the music will last as long as the dancers, Mrs. James McCann, publicity chairman, explained.

DALE CORLISS, formerly the vocalist with the Dick Jurgens' orchestra, will entertain at Autumn Whirl, the dinner-dance being given on October 21 by the members of the North Peninsula Circle for the Florence Crittenton home, according to Mrs. Murray H. Freedman.

Tickets to the event, which will be staged in the clubhouse at Crystal Springs, are available through Mrs. James Kennaugh in Daly City or Mrs. Harold Tonini, in San Bruno.

Terra Nova Topics

By DENISE BARR

Mike Valerio, a Terra Nova senior, has taken a poll of students at TN concerning his idea of using the $12,000 Standard Oil grant to build an Amphitheater in the proposed Frontier Park.

Of the completed polls Mike, a PBR commissioner, has received, more than half of TN students are in favor of the outdoor theater. Students who voted "No" on the Amphitheater thought the money could be spent on tennis courts for Terra Nova, an ice skating rink, and some felt that since the money was received for helping the environment, it should be spent on cleaning up and improving the environment of Pacifica.

When Mike presented his idea to the City Council, its members asked him to take a poll of students and present it to the Council in 30 days. Mike will be presenting his results to the council on October 10. Anyone can attend the meeting. The council will give its vote about the theater, after they hear Mike's presentation.

An amphitheater was in the original plans for Frontier Park, but was not planned to be built for some time. It is hoped that the city will receive a HUD fund of $12,000 for the theater, which will double the amount of the original funds.

If, as Mike hopes, the Council votes "yes," the amphitheater is to start being constructed this fall. The theater will be designed by the city staff and is aimed to be vandal-proof. Mike feels the outdoor theater can be used for outdoor rock concerts, school plays, awards assemblies, and various other activities. He feels the whole community will benefit from the theater.

Serramonte High-lites

Serramonte High School has established a reading lab for its students.

Serramonte's English Department screens all entering freshmen shortly after the beginning of the semester to determine where reading problems exist.

These students are assigned to the reading lab, where they will work on a one to one basis with one of the 18 student teachers in the program.

Students also can be assigned to the reading lab at their parents' request.

Working with the students to a one-to-one basis seems as the best and perhaps only way to establish confidence and then reading problems can be conquered, according to a program spokesman.

As the student progresses he might want to broaden his reading experiences by bringing in friends to read a play, and this can be done, but the teacher-student ratio will never go beyond one to three.

ANOTHER important purpose of the reading lab is to provide students with an environment most conducive to reading, with an abundance of books and a comfortable place to sit.

Students also may consult with Louis Silberman, the director, on advanced reading problems, such as organizing term paper research, increasing reading speed, etc.

SILBERMAN also intends to make new materials available in the English field to other faculty members for use in their various classes.

The entire English Department here has participated in the establishment of this lab, for they have said they feel that having each student know how to read and being able to fully participate in class is most important.

Parents or other community members who want help with the reading lab and who can take a regular commitment of time would be most welcome at Serramonte, according to Silberman.

New Concert Band in D.C. 'Does Well'

Thirty-one musicians attended the first rehearsal of the newly formed Daly City Community Concert Band in Room 227 of Serramonte High School, 699 Serramonte Boulevard, Daly City.

In performing the Nutcracker Suite of Tchaikowsky, fine flute solos were done by Ken Martinez and Anita Jackson, with able assistance by Martina Karapet, Pam McNeill, Diane Bashaw and Angie Pereira. The music of Rodgers, Grofe and Sousa was also performed.

Miss Janet Gaynor, director of the Serramonte High School Band, was an able assistant conductor during the rehearsal.

All mature musicians are invited to perform with the Band, a need does exist at present for the following instrumentalists: oboe, French horn, bass clarinet, baritone horn and all woodwinds.

Newest member of the young club is Floyd Elkins, assistant dean of instruction for Career Education at Skyline College. Elkins, who holds a masters degree from San Francisco State College, was a management consultant before coming to Skyline in 1969.

A 12-year resident of Pacifica, he lives at 1193 Alcantara Drive with his wife, Rose, and their three children.

Upon entering the club, Elkins said, "It is gratifying to see the enthusiasm of Kiwanians in planning service functions that will fill the needs of Pacifica."

He added that "the annual Labor Day Kiwanis Coastside Ride — the club's major project — is something that will be enjoyed by the entire community."

The first order of business on the "Share Your Life" program, Bingham said, will be for each member of the club to "extend himself, personally, into the community."

The young and growing Pacifica club officer invited community spirited persons to join them.

Kiwanis meets each Wednesday at noon at Nick's Rockaway.

'Share Your Life' Program

A new program of personal involvement on the part of Kiwanis members, called "Share Your Life," is under way in Pacifica, according to Robert L. Bingham, vice president of the Kiwanis Club of Pacifica.

The program will call, specifically, for personal action by Kiwanis members in the fields of service, the home, association with others, recreation and exploration — aspects of life suggested by the letters composing the word "share," which is a part of the program's name.

Bingham said, "That mutual effort on the part of all segments of society — sharing — is absolutely essential in a world like ours."

He said the "Share Your Life" concept is not confined to Kiwanian and Kiwanis club alone.

"Rather," he said, "it is the hope of Kiwanis that the ideal of sharing will extend to everyone within the community."

The new program was adopted by Kiwanis International members at the organization's 57th annual convention in Atlantic City last June. It envisions Kiwanians working with young people and older people alike, to the mutual benefit of all.

The first order of business on the "Share Your Life" program, Bingham said, will be for each member of the club to "extend himself, personally, into the community."

The young and growing Pacifica club officer invited community spirited persons to join them.

Kiwanis meets each Wednesday at noon at Nick's Rockaway.

Newest member of the young club is Floyd Elkins, assistant dean of instruction for Career Education at Skyline College.

OFFICES IN OTHER CALIFORNIA CITIES

The Westmoor Whirl

Chosen to represent Westmoor at Boy's State, Girl's State over the summer were seniors Tony Giamone, Tim Res, and Jan Pierce.

Sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, this function is held every year for one week during the summer months. It is a work and studies program dealing with functional government in today's society.

Students are selected from all over California. They are recommended by faculty members and then privately interviewed by members of the American Legion, who then make the final decision. To qualify, you must be a junior and in the upper third of your class scholastically.

Boy's State was held between June 17-24 at Sacramento State College. About 900 boys attended from all over California. They were assigned cities and counties. Both Tony and Tim were proud citizens of Howie County. There are three cities to one county. As the cities and counties are organized, the boys run for various offices like mayor, judges, supervisors, etc. Tony was elected city councilman and Tim was county coroner and at another time public administrator.

Two political parties were formed, the Whigs and Federalists. Two rallies were held where the boys running for state offices spoke about their views on politics.

After the two rallies, the parties held two conventions for their candidates. From this an election was held for state offices.

Something that has never happened in the history of Boy's State, was that a real trial was held. It seemed that one boy who was running for governor had illegal names on his petition.

A trial was held for 1 1/2 days, and the boy was found guilty. The boy who was elected governor of Boy's State was selected to participate in Boy's Nation. This was held in Washington, D.C. about a week after Boy's State. Tim Res was his campaign manager.

Governor Reagan, State Controller Huston Flournoy, and Lt. Gov. Ed Reineke were honored guests at Sacramento State. They answered questions on the laws pertaining to marijuana and drinking, and voting at age 18.

GIRL'S STATE was held at Squaw Valley, June 28-July 5. About 540 girls from all over California attended. Jan was a member of Serra City in San Francisco County. A typical day was started at an early 6:30 a.m. and ended at 10 p.m.

A city meeting was held in the morning in the conference room, which was used for the winter Olympics. Such propositions were discussed as the legalization of marijuana (which failed) and prostitution (which passed). They also discussed abortions, busing, population control and prison reform.

Election of officers was next. Instead of dog catcher, Jan was nominated Serra City "boy" catcher. Also each city elected one girl to run the Whig campaign for which Jan was also nominated by her city. But Jan received a special award from the girls of her "city." They selected her as the "Serra City Sweetheart."

All of the cities made up their own laws. Laws may either be very crazy or totally strict, which makes it kind of fun.

There is also a general election, in which the two party leaders campaign. Jan said, "Everything was done in a perfect manner; you must be precise in everything you want to run for."

From the general offices, two girls are picked to go to Washington, D.C. to participate in Girl's Nation, where girls are selected from all over the nation.

Besides learning about our government and enjoying it in a fun way, these three people free time to meet new friends, and enjoy a fun-filled week together.

—Gail Gaviglio

THE LIBRARY will have a new look when it opens its doors for business this year. Workmen have been busy during the summer renovating it. Recently the project has been plagued by difficulties. In August, a cement strike was the cause of delay. Now, the furnaces for the bookshelves is late in arriving.

Two classrooms were sacrificed to solve the book population explosion, as the library was extended into the rooms next door. The expansion of the library has long been the wish of Mrs. Ann Lynde, the head librarian. It was her job to equipt 25,000 books and a large supply of periodicals into a library that was originally built to accommodate 6,800 books.

The new library will accommodate all of the books and three classes of students. Last year, the library held only one class comfortably.

Many of the books will be separated into their own sections to make the check out system more efficient. For instance, reference and paperback books will each have their own section. Magazines and newspapers will be in their own section and will have their own special checkout desk.

The new library also will feature a group conference room. The faculty will appreciate this feature when discussing a class project in the library. Westmoor's Career Information Center will be moving into the expanded library.

Along with the added room, the new library is also being redecorated. The walls will be blue and the ceiling white. There will also be dark blue, wall-to-wall carpeting. New audio-visual equipment, bookshelves and individual studying desks will also contribute to the value of the library.

—DAVE LIPPI

WITH THE START of this school year, Westmoor will have something new besides freshmen. Over the summer John Borgard Contractors of Fresno installed an underground sprinkler system.

Completed at a cost of $156,000, the job, after approval in May by the Board of Supervisors, began in June lasting approximately two and a half months. With the new system in running, Westmoor hopes to INTERROG a day of inquiry, discussion, music and the arts — will be held at South San Francisco High School on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Planned as a fall festival, INTERROG is an educational experience that brings individuals and organizations together in a friendly and free environment according to organizers. Agencies representing a wide spectrum of views and services will be present to meet with the public.

The festival is organized into three general categories: Human Relations and Rights. War and Peace and Public Service. The N.A.A.C.P., Birthright, Planned Parenthood and the United Steel Workers of America, local 1069 will be among those representing the area of Human Relations and Rights. Servicemen from the U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force, women from Another Mother for Peace and representatives from Vietnam Veterans Against the War, the Ecumenical Peace Institute and the San Mateo Peace Center will be among those groups dealing with the issues of war and peace.

Art Fair Set By H-A Guild

The Holy Angels Women's Guild is sponsoring an art fair in the parish hall, 107 San Pedro Rd., Colma.

The show will open on October 13 from 7 p.m. to 11. There will be complimentary champagne and hors d'oeuvres. It will continue on October 14 from 1 to 4.

Original oil paintings and reproductions of well-known artists, as well as many varied types of art work, done by parishioners, friends and local artists will be featured.

Public Service Agencies will include the Day Care Service of the San Mateo County Welfare Department, the South San Francisco Police Department, Vocations for Social Change, Food Conspiracy, the Sierra Club, Information Referral Center, Damien House of South San Francisco, Andorra II (a free university opening its doors this Fall) and the South San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Music throughout the day will be provided by Freedom, a jazz rock group. Bill Sack's Sounds of Marin, with big band scores, and Jon Fromer, a folk singer guitarist, who appears on television's "Git Box Ticket." Local artists and craftsmen will display their work, free soft drinks will be provided and admission is free.

INTERROG is sponsored by People Acting Together, a north San Mateo County Committee dedicated to increasing community awareness of the events and choices presented in today's world, a spokesman said.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Santa Maria Room Is The Fisherman Winner

Winning entry in the "Name-the-Banquet Room" contest at The Fisherman, the luxurious new seafood restaurant which overlooks the Bay in Burlingame, was sealed by Walter Renner, a San Francisco realtor who is a resident of Burlingame. The entry, "The Santa Maria," was selected because it not only fits in with the restaurant's nautical motif and cuisine, but is associated with Columbus, who is almost the "patron saint" of the restaurant located on Old Bayshore Highway. The Nina and Pinta, Columbus' other ships, are the names chosen for the other dining rooms. Knowledgeable wine buffs should definitely pay a visit to Le Bistro Rouge on Twenty-fifth Avenue. Owner Dimitrios provides an extraordinary selection of premium dinner wines and enjoys discussing the subject with his patrons. Phil Lehr's Steakery, in downtown San Francisco, is a convenient dining spot for folks planning to see "No No Nanette" at the Curran Theater. The Steakery is just a short walk from the Curran, and there is ample parking at The Carriage Entrance. You can have kind of a Grecian smorgasbord at the Balkan Village. Order the Combination Dinner, which includes Lamb Kapsnia, Baked Chicken Rigani, Dolmades and Kefthetes (Athenian meat balls). Baklava is the dessert to go with it.

A FIRST FOR STICKNEY'S Veronica "Vee" Hicks has been appointed manager of Stickney's restaurant, in Redwood City, it was announced by Richard Alldred, general manager of the Peninsula restaurant chain. "Vee," a seven-and-a-half-year veteran of the Stickney organization, takes great pride in being able to give personalized service and make suggestions for wedding cakes, anniversaries and similar occasions. She is the first woman to be appointed manager of a Stickney restaurant.

Wedding Bells For Scotty Campbell's Mary Lou

Dinner in the cozy dining rooms at Scotty Campbell's, an award-winning restaurant in Redwood City, featuring steak and prime rib, in addition to their regular menu, may be preceded by cocktails in the friendly bar-lounge, one of the local favorites. Here, the talk may be of football, a winning horse at Bay Meadows, a dining celebrity, or perhaps antiques, of which there are many gracing the interior of both the lounge and dining areas. The exciting topic these past few days has been the wedding of Mary Lou Francis, co-owner of this outstanding restaurant, to Frederick F. Fox. The happy couple said their vows Sunday, October 1, at St. Anthony Church on Middlefield Road in Menlo Park. Helel Trainor, lovely mother of the petite bride, is bubbling over with joy. Recommended as one of the Italian selections at Vince's Italian and Seafood Restaurant is Roast Chicken and Polenta, a gourmet delight served as a Sunday Special. The Polenta, a gourmet delight served as a Sunday Special. The menu is rich with a variety of seafood, salads are cool and crisp, and desserts attract those who relish their sweets at mealtime. Vince Licata and his sons, Tony and Louis, try to send each guest forth as a booster of their well sought-out restaurant and Fish Depot, whether it's for lunch, dinner, a quick snack, cocktails, or fresh sea food for the home table.

Leo's Fried Chicken Worth Crowding About

Famous Recipe Fried Chicken is "worth crowding about," says Leo Marlay, who owns the local Famous Recipe outlet which is located adjacent to the Whistle Stop in Belmont, another Marlay enterprise. Leo, an avid beer fan, dislikes fighting the traffic to Candlestick Park so much that he usually makes a deal with friends attending the games. If they drive, he'll provide the food and beverages. One guess as to what the menu entails — Famous Recipe Fried Chicken. Rumor has it that Leo provides enough chicken for the complete section surrounding his seat at the ballpark. Dancing to the mellow sounds of The MacDonalds, Patty and Mac, continues to attract enthusiastic crowds to the Lancer Lounge of the Holiday Inn, South San Francisco. They entertain nightly, Tuesday through Saturday. The Greek Taverna in North Beach, the heart of night club action in San Francisco, is currently presenting sexy belly dancers in three shows nightly. The Trio Orfeo provides the dancing music for these lovely ladies of the mysterious East. The Taverna is also offering dinners nightly under the care of the Haramis brothers.

"Tea For Two" Versatile Wow At Finocchio's

Russell Reed wows the ringiders at Finocchio's with his 395-pound version of "Tea For Two." The versatile performer tops it off by throwing all his energies into a tap dance routine that brings down the house. There's never a dull moment at this world-famous nightclub in San Francisco. Frere Jacques, an excellent French restaurant in downtown Palo Alto, also offers facilities for banquets and private parties. The upstairs area is an ideal setting for any type of private gathering. Romano's Italian restaurant, located at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica offers not only small medium and large pizzas but full-course Italian dinners, prepared under the supervision of owner Enrico Romano. Enrico considers both offerings his specialties. "Everything I serve," he says, "is special." Frank and Fannie Torres, long-time restaurant owners on the Coastside, report that the current wave of beautiful weather has attracted an extra-large influx of diners, who drop into savor the superb South American specialty dishes and to savor the sweeping, panoramic view through the Montara Restaurant's huge bay windows.

Family Burger Welcomes You To Shoreview

Special to Shoreview district residents: You can get a mighty fine sandwich at Ellie Blumann's Family Burger, located at 1440 Cary Avenue. The 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. menu also lists many other goodies which are as home cooked as Mom's apple pie. The breakfast, lunch and dinner service is carried on by Tonnie Martinez, and Debbie and Sandy Blumann, three very attractive, attentive, young ladies. If you're in search of fine food, and leisurely cocktails for a small group, the Iron Horse on San Francisco's Maiden Lane, with all its elegance, is a great choice. It's also ideally located for business meetings. Deluxe luncheons are served daily, along with gourmet complimentary hors d'oeuvres during the cocktail hour. Dinners feature Continental cuisine. If you're planning to entertain here during the holidays, early reservations are suggested. With the new season at the Circle Star Theater slated to open soon, celebrity watchers will have a chance to see some of the headlines as they relax at Chuck's Steak House, in San Mateo. After performances, most of the theater crew head directly for this friendly spot.

Girl Scouting

THE KICK-OFF luncheon for new Girl Scouts leaders, given by the experienced ladies and hosted by the Service Team is scheduled for Wednesday, October 11 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Hope Lutheran Church.

The menu will feature international dishes of salads, hot foods and desserts; the program will be provided by Mrs. Hilda Heagney, an expert in adult reeducation and investiture ceremonies.

MRS. VIRGINIA TUFTS, Daily City Girl Scout registrar, announces that all local troops are currently registered and will lose no time in continuous membership.

The volunteer, new this year to this position but experienced in many phases of Scouting, reminds the public that financial support is largely determined by membership and the Girl Scouts are a UBAC agency.

"SERVICE to others is the Girl Scout Way," according to Mrs. Joan Stewart, Daily City's program resources chairman, and is the reason she is responsible for a new brochure listing local projects for troops.

Ideas included listings of Eco-Action projects, dramatics, crafts, holiday outings, aid to retarded children, etc. — all based on events suitable for the 7 to 17 age group.

Science centers, tours and parks are also included in places to visit; the brochures are available from Mrs. Stewart or from any trainer.

A SKILLS FAIRE is planned for Marin County to train local Scout adults regardless of their camping attributes. Scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, October 14 and 15, it will include basics such as firebuilding up to advanced gourmet cooking and backpacking.

Husbands are urged to attend with their wives to study camp tools, nature walks, and instruct in knots and lashing, etc.

Registration is through the Council offices at 36 Cypress Lane in Brisbane and the low registration fee includes meals.

ATTENDING the recent Daily City Girl Scout Service Team meeting were Association Chairman Mrs. Margaret Connolly, Membership Director Louise Courpet, Director of Consultants Donna Barnes, Camp Coordinator Mary Ann Dale, Training Coordinator Carol Scott, Publicity Chairman Roz Morine and Scoutbook Editor Valerie Thurman.

Program Resource Chairman Joan Stewart, Nominating Committee Chairman Virginia Nowicki, Special Events Chairman Barbara Rushton, Badge Depot Chairman Grace Winters and field staff representative Mrs. Ruth Metzger discussed the yearly plan of work.

Kurt Larcher, an assistant patrol leader of Daily City's Scout Troop 360, spent the summer in the Russian River area, where he entered a Red Cross swimming class after completing his regular scout camp at nearby Camp Royce with the troop.

Mrs. Betty Power of Santa Rosa and the Russian River Recreation Department conducted the class. Larcher received his Red Cross swimming and junior life saving certificates at the end of the season.

Five students including Larcher also completed a four-mile endurance swim.

Shower for SSF Prexy

A rather unusual event followed last week's meeting of the South San Francisco Unified School District Board meeting.

A bridal shower was held for the school board president, Mrs. Lorraine Cooper.

Fellow trustees, school administrators and friends presented her with a number of gifts.

She will be marrying Carl Berg October 12.

The party appeared on the meeting agenda under "good and welfare."

School Burglary

Belle Air School in San Bruno was broken into between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Police said someone kicked in a door and took $61.50 in school supplies.

Signups For Rec Programs

Senate OKs Bruno Park Deal

Authority of the California Department of Public Works to negotiate a lease of about 3.5 acres of state-owned land to the city of San Bruno for park and recreational purposes was granted recently by the California Highway Commission at a business meeting in Bishop.

In recommending the action, Commissioner Vernon J. Cristina of San Jose said the land is located in the northeast quadrant of a freeway-to-freeway interchange, lying between Interstate 380 and its connecting ramp to northbound Interstate 280.

The city proposes to construct park facilities including landscaping, two group picnic areas with benches and tables, barbecue pits and restrooms. The development of the property would be subject to the approval of a tentative plan by the Department of Public Works.

The lease under consideration calls for the city to pay the nominal sum of $100 a year for 10 years with a five-year renewal option. The site is not considered suitable for higher use because of its restricted access via a specially built passageway from Cherry Avenue.

Cristina said the state could contribute $56,170 toward the development of the park facilities. That amount represents the cost of what the state would otherwise pay to landscape the area and maintain it for five years.

However, he added, the extent of the state's contribution will be determined by the approval of such participation by the Federal Highway Administration. Should the lease be approved, San Bruno would be responsible for all maintenance costs during the term of the lease.

Police units responded to his home talking on the telephone. Asked who he was talking to, the man reportedly responded, "my wife." All the while the police were surrounding the home and preparing to fire in some tear gas. The elder Rubino's sister, Rose Marie Thoms of San Bruno, said his son was attempting to kill himself. Rubino into giving up.

He refused to let anyone into the home. Finally, at the time tear gas was ready to be fired, Rubino, after a few words from his wife, Mary, opened the front door, threw out the shotgun and re-entered the home. Police said the incident apparently stemmed from marital difficulty.

At the same time, a crowd was gathering. One officer reported he saw a curious onlooker hanging out of the window of the area with tear gas, bullet-proof vests and gas masks. The area was blocked off to all traffic, and homes in the immediate area were emptied of occupants. At the same time, a crowd was gathering. ## S.S.F. Burglar Gets Surprise In Apartment

Nearly a thousand dollars worth of valuables were taken in a series of burglaries in South San Francisco Sept. 26. Police, however, are not on the burglar's trail. They even have his description. The burglar forced his way into several homes and apartments while the occupants (he hoped) were off to work. At one apartment on Commercial Avenue, however, he failed to make sure. Entering, he found himself looking right at the occupant. The suspect, described as good looking and well dressed, a Latin type with black hair of medium length, 160 pounds, brown cordary jacket, turned around and ran. Police believe him to have been successful, however, in burglarizing. Three other apartments were entered and lost valued at more than $900 taken.

US Census Bureau to Poll County on Purchase Plans

Questions on consumer buying and home improvement expectations will be asked by representatives of the Bureau of the Census in this area during early October, according to John E. Tharaldson, director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Seattle.

The survey is taken four times yearly as part of a nationwide effort to guide government agencies in developing programs based on consumer spending patterns. A sample of residents in this area will be asked if they expect to buy a house, car, or major household home improvements and repairs made during the last three months. The July 1972 survey indicated no significant change from earlier plans this year to buy new cars or houses. Expectations to buy major household items were somewhat improved, but the proportion of homeowners planning to make home improvements remained unchanged.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept confidential by law and will be published only in the form of statistical tables. The Census Bureau representative in this area is Mrs. Ann Parker, 408 Ruby Street, Redwood City.

Philosophical Messages

Black Playwright Ossie Davis and scores of other theater and show business personalities and artists have moved outside the rarified air of the entertainment world to bring forth a message that is both philosophical and realistic in terms of productivity and personal pride.

He has written, produced and directed a closed circuit TV-and-live spectacular that is aimed at inspiring and motivating, at the same time promoting participation and financial aid to a new self help program that has already saved hundreds of thousands of dollars in welfare support.

"Everybody Can Be Somebody" is a nationwide message that will highlight the National OIC Day (Opportunities Industrialization Centers, Inc.) that will be broadcast to 45 cities on the same night.

In San Francisco, the telecast will take place at the Civic Auditorium and will tell the OIC story in words and music, rather than serve as a charity benefit variety show. What began as a Black project has extended to all who are poor, according to Dr. Maurice Dawkins, executive vice-chairman.

Local talent will augment the TV show with the Stanze Peterson Dancers, the Polytechnical High School Choir, the Self Help Evaluation Band, the Black Knights and the Black Raven Pipe Band, an all Black contingent who are devotees of Rufus Harley, the jazz bagpiper of Philadelphia.

Since some artists are committed to contracts and playing dates that night, some segments of the telecast will be on film such as Johnny Mathis, and Lyndon B. Johnson with Ted Kennedy.

The realistic note in such a production is that trainees in the OIC program can attend through the underwritten financial support of industry, those who hire and train in vocational centers all across America and in several foreign countries.

"Our concept, from our beginning in 1964 in Philadelphia and 1965 in Menlo Park, has been to motivate people to help themselves. We train them, and then help them find a job. Of our some 100,000 graduates, 70 per cent got jobs after graduation. And 85 per cent of the people that got jobs have held them."

"OIC receives approximately 90 per cent of its funding from contracts with the federal government. While government support is essential, OIC of America is fundamentally wedded to the traditional American economic theory. We strongly believe in the free enterprise system."

They Started
Coming Here

Just seven years ago, about 600,000 Americans a year were migrating to California. Net annual growth was staggering. It equaled the population of San Diego, and exceeded that of some states.

California developed a way of life that included the outdoors, the oceans, the mountains and the joys and frustrations of suburban living. Growth was a reliable and ever present source of demand.

Once it was decided that half a million people would arrive each year, plans were made that depended upon it. An absurd game of numbers was current. One form projected population as of future years—e.g., 2030 or 2050, and came up with extravagant results. All of California, it seemed, would be a new Tokyo. The entire coastal valley, and even the low mountains, would be crowded with people.

Some, caught up in the numbers game, planned highways, offices, plants, homes and supermarkets based upon the assurance of ever more people. Already one can find shopping centers that on one side face suburbia, and on the other, cows, office buildings that can't sell space, and streets and sewers that serve no houses.

The chances are that all this will become more noticeable in the next few years. For the miracle of constant expansion is, for the moment, at an end. In the past few years California grew at a rate only slightly higher than the rest of the nation, and it is now predicted that our rate of growth will approximate the national average. That average, what is more, is being held up by the number of people in the child-bearing generation, not in the number of children being born per capita.

After years of growthmanship, California must now become accustomed, for the moment at least, to greatly constrained expansion. As yet, we have not fully adjusted to this surprising reality. Office buildings, apartments and hotels are being constructed at a rate that seems to exceed foreseeable demand. There are several reasons for this. The building boom, the continuation of plans based on expansionist expectations and relocation within the state.

When the current spasm of activity slows down, however, only one of these reasons, relocation, will remain. This means that parts of California will expand, and others decline. We will, in effect, be firing off ourselves, and not migration from the rest of the state. The wary investor or developer looks with care about the state. Where will this intra-state expansion take place?

Currently, a few areas appear overbuilt, so far as apartment development is concerned. These places include San Jose, the San Fernando Valley, and parts of Orange County. Office and hotel space are overabundant in San Francisco and some other places.

Nationally, there is selective land shortage around the edges of some population centers. Notable are the greater New York, San Francisco, and Los Angeles areas. This pressure has developed because of the configuration of oceans, bays, and mountains. Thus, for example, Los Angeles presses upon Orange County to the south, and Ventura to the north for continuing natural expansion.

New development will occur at and near transportation terminals. Airports and rapid transit stations are likely target areas.

Most of the state, however, will be much more stable and static. It will be interesting to see if California uses the slow or no growth period to improve the quality of life, or chooses to fall into the pattern of genteel decay known to other states with steady populations. While there are obvious economic disadvantages to reduced expansion, there are interesting sociological and environmental opportunities.

Certainly all of our state is not now beautiful. Our central cities and the centers of many of our smaller cities and towns are in a condition of serious disrepair. We have not really started to do an adequate job with sewage and other wastes, or of water pollution. Our smog is as renowned as our mountains. We need fewer signs and more trees. Our response to the earthquake of earthquakes is found more in prayer than action. While housing generally remains healthy, there is a shortage of low-cost units.

All this means that California has no reason to lament the loss of continental migrants. We can most profitably use the next few years by diverting our vast energies from making more of everything to improving the quality of what we have.

Perhaps when this has been done others will want to move here in large numbers again. But for a short period, at least, we should turn our attention to straightening away the mess that has resulted from shabby building and planning.

Pacifica Private Patrolman's
Fight With City Hall, Police

Editor's Note: This is a three-part series about a citizen and his city government. It is the story of Pacifica's Ray Karczewski, and why he's working toward the recall of the city council. After eight years on the city's police force, Karczewski retired and went into a private patrol business, only to quickly become embroiled in a controversy over whether he was being harassed by his former comrades. Karczewski took his complaint to the city council, who he feels took a cursory look at the issue and arbitrarily sided with the police department. He has promised to "fight them to the ground."

By BOB PETERSON

Pacifica Coast Investigations and Security offers its service to its clients in Pacifica "in the belief that a periodic random patrol is a deterrent to burglars and vandals."

The firm conforms to all applicable regulations, state and federal laws and city ordinances. A special daylight residential service includes the inspection of the outside of a house, both visually and on foot, trying all doors and inspecting all windows.

Pacifica Coast Investigations and Security does not guarantee, however, that its clients will suffer no burglary or vandalism. Nor is the service meant to be a substitute for police service. Therefore, each entity theoretically should be able to go its own way.

Yet, for the past two years the owner of this private patrol service, Ray Karczewski, 34, a retired Pacifica Police Department sergeant, has been fighting tooth and nail for a "full and complete" investigation to be made into what he says is "unwarranted harassment and interference" with his business by the police department.

A "full and complete" investigation is Karczewski's name for a review of his allegations, which are many and involved, as against the police department's side of these allegations, by a "disinterested third party."

After continued requests by Karczewski the council did recently accept his charges in writing. The city's official body then had the police department answer those allegations point-by-point.

The findings of this "investigation" were brief in a "position paper," with the city council responding, openly to only what he considered the salient charges.

And in a final determination made at the council meeting of July 24, the council told Karczewski that his charges were unfounded and the matter was closed as far as the city is concerned.

According to the last paragraph of the city council "position paper," a copy of the 400-page staff report answering point-by-point Karczewski's allegations against the police department "is available to the press and members of the public at the city manager's office."

However, attempts to obtain that document in order to review it to see how the council arrived at its decision was denied on the grounds that "it contains personalities" and confidential police reports.

The decision of the council only reinforced Karczewski's observation that he is "being had" by unresponsive officials. The man who once was only at odds with the police department has now taken on a new crusade against the city council. At the August 28 council meeting a frustrated Karczewski promised, "I intend to start a recall movement for all council members right now." A recall movement is now being organized in Pacifica.

Just when this donnybrook started is uncertain. When Karczewski joined the Pacifica Police Department in 1962, he gave up an opportunity to give professional boxing a shot. After gaining the title of 8th Army light heavyweight champion in Korea in 1957, Karczewski later turned professional light heavyweight for a year in Chicago.

He had five fights, and what he smilingly called "a bad record." His slim wife Anita, who was his high school sweetheart, is now mother of three, explained. "He didn't want to hurt people."

Karczewski had come to California on vacation, and possibly to seek a job. "I got a telegram from Toots Shor," recalled Karczewski. "He said they were scouting the country for prospective heavyweights and I was one of six being considered. He wanted me to fly to New York for a look-see."

But fighting in the ring never materialized. Karczewski chose law enforcement instead.

"I've always wanted to be a police officer."

According to Nelson's evaluation, Karczewski's strong points were: "Has good investigative ability but is lacking in knowledge to completely round out this ability."

"Is consistent in pursuing facts on a case and has good interrogation ability. Makes frequent personal contact with citizens on follow-up investigations. Has become involved in community affairs in that he is a member of the Youth Service Bureau Citizens' Advisory Committee."

Then Nelson listed what he considered Karczewski's weak points.

"Appears unable to give full attention to more than one case at a time. Is unable to relate the principles of investigation in one case to a different case unless it is exactly the same. Does not create work when his caseload becomes light."

These state appear to be keeping his mind from the office with non-division members. Has failed to cultivate informants for intelligence in the past few months, feels he has no need for it.

"Has failed to educate himself in many phases of investigative work which does not pertain to his (fraud) detail. Does not take interest in other details of the division, only his assigned cases and nothing more."

Under "comments by department head," Tremaine had penciled in: "Employee does not agree with supervisor's evaluation. States there are some points of agreement, but criticism, but does not agree with criteria for evaluation. Weak point may have been rather strongly stated."

Karczewski said he questioned the fact that Nelson "challenged my competency" in light of the fact that he moved up the ranks together, and taken promotional exams together.

He points specifically to the exam for the position of police captain, which subsequently was given to Nelson. Results of that test show that four officers scored 100 per cent. Karczewski placed second and Nelson placed third. There was a difference of three percentage points between Karczewski and Nelson, and Karczewski was two percentage points below the man getting the highest score.

Segment of the test included administration, patrol, criminal law, law of arrest, law of evidence, juvenile control, court procedures, investigation and supervision.

The top man in the test left the department and Nelson was given the captain's appointment because Karczewski was not eligible for the position due to meeting a minimum time requirement within the department.

Karczewski said he also "categorically challenged" the evaluation report because of a record he had kept of cases he had worked from October of 1968 through January of 1969, which showed he "closed more cases in two months than the entire inspection division closed."

As to the fact Nelson was appointed captain over him, Karczewski said, "I had no ill-feeling. I felt he had more experience."

But he said he was being pressured into signing the evaluation report and giving the (then) City Manager C. W. Mansheimer nor (then) Assistant City Manager Jim Swaney asked to discuss the matter with him.

When he finally did get a session with Tremaine, with Nelson in attendance, Karczewski said

Karczewski, when the semi-annual personnel evaluation reports came due.

Karczewski said he was called in by Capt. (now chief) Mel Nelson and asked to read and sign the evaluation report, which was made by Nelson. After reading it, Karczewski refused to sign it. He told Nelson he wanted to review it in the presence of (then) Chief Neil Tremaine because he didn't totally agree with it.

The performance evaluation, dated April 4, 1970, gave Karczewski an overall rating of "usually fails to meet job requirements."

"Is consistent in pursuing facts on a case and has good interrogation ability. Makes frequent personal contact with citizens on follow-up investigations. Has become involved in community affairs in that he is a member of the Youth Service Bureau Citizens' Advisory Committee."

Why Is Nader
Such a Smash?

(Sam Chandler is on vacation. Today's column is by Ed Cavallini, Daly City Community Services librarian.)

Are you interested in changing your community? Improving transportation? Schools? Police protection?

Read on. This column will provide you with vital information if you are honestly interested in making changes and improving community services.

The secret weapon is now revealed:

WHY IS NADER such a smash? What is behind the marvelous machinations of Saul Alinsky? The FBI? The CIA?

Research. Yes, deadly dull, plodding, old-fashioned research. The curse of the student—the staple of the librarian, research turns out to be the staunch ally of the community activist.

The importance of research methodology is the main thread running through most of the material covering community change and action. The less establishment-oriented the author, the more noticeable the theme. Community activists use the information gathered by research for day-to-day organizing work, planning strategy, education of organizers and the community, formulating demands, and muckraking.

Where it's at (see below) points out that people involved in social change often have as many views as the blind men asked to describe an elephant, and states that "research can help provide some sight, some insight, into the nature of the animal." Through action, an attempt can be made to capture the beast and make it human. "The Nader Research Methodology Guide is particularly detailed and complete. These two publications make a much more convincing, eloquent case for research than anything I've come across while wandering through several colleges and universities."

MOST OF THE publications below tell the reader he can "get it at the library." If your library doesn't have any of these items, ask that they be obtained through inter-library loan or that they be added to the collection for use by the community. The entire list of items covered can be bought for less than $30, which would be a good investment for most libraries and groups interested in improving their community. Little has been written on this vital subject; now you'll have a chance to catch up with the radicals. And, help change your community.

CATALOG OF WEAPONS

Alinsky, Saul D. Rules for Radicals: A Pragmatic Primer for Realistic Radicals. New York: Random House, 1971. $6.95.

America's top community organizer distills his 40 years of experience in this highly readable book. He cites many examples of his past successes, drops names and is very amusing. Although called a primer this is actually an inspirational tract. It really doesn't tell you how, but it makes you want to do it!

Bloomfield, Howard. Promoting Your Cause. New York: Funk & Wagnalls, 1971. $7.95.

Although not aimed particularly at changing communities, this book succinctly covers an area where many community projects fail: promotion. The author, obviously a professional public relations man, discusses communications from the person-to-person conversation to using all aspects of the media.

Hamberg, Jill et al. Where It's At: A Research Guide for Community Organizing. Boston: New England Free Press (791 Tremont St., Boston 02118), 1967. 31. (paper).

This practical guide gives specific details on how to research all aspects of the community, its institutions, and its people. The data is clearly presented, aptly illustrated, and filled with common sense. Although five years old, the material is still valid for most activists.

Huenefeld, John. The Community Activist's Handbook: A Guide to Organizing, Financing, and Publicizing Community Campaigns. Boston: Beacon Press, 1970. $6.00.

A friend of mine, a long-time community activist, calls this "the best work I've seen on the subject." All the mechanics of organization and management of a successful community campaign are covered. Huenefeld stresses the nuts and grits which, although not exciting, are the essentials of success.

Jones, W. Ron. Finding Community: A Guide to Community Research and Action. Palo Alto: James E. Freese and Associates, 1971. 377 College Avenue, Palo Alto 94306. 1971. $3.45 plus 50¢ handling if mailed ordered. (paper).

This is a very interesting hand-textbook aimed at changing things in areas such as welfare, medicine, police, schools, credit rip-offs, etc. Even such topics are covered, each in the same manner: an indictment, one or two readings in the subject (i.e., Postman on schools), community research (a sample survey form), some specific suggestions for community action, and suggested alternatives (starting a co-op). A unique book that should be invaluable to community activists.

North American Congress on Latin America. NACLA Research Methodology Guide. New York: NACLA (Box 57, Cathedral Park Station, N.Y. 10025), 1970. $1 (paper).

This publication devotes itself entirely to research methodology, one of the keys to an activist's actions. While it is written on a national-international scale, most of the information applies to less ambitious activists. Subjects covered include personalities and elites, political parties, corporations, media, labor, military, universities, police, church and health. The chapter entitled "Ten Theses on Power Structure Research" is required reading for community activists... and everyone else doing any type of research.

The O. M. Collective. The Organizer's Manual. New York: Bantam Books, 1971. $1.25 (paper). This is probably the best buy of all of the books mentioned. Although it goes well beyond community action, the basic elements are well covered: organizing groups, researching the power structure, communications, taking action and using establishment methods. Also included is detailed data on constitutions and a 60-page bibliography-directory related to the text.

The Post gives its columnists a great deal of latitude, offering its readers the benefit of knowledgeable, varying opinion. Their opinions are not necessarily those of The Post which addresses itself to its readers only through clearly marked editorials.

Rams Down San Mateo

Westmoor High School line coach Bob Lotti hit the books this past week and what he learned off the field enabled the Rams to remain the county's lone unbeaten, untied and unscored-upon football squad.

Regarded as one of the best coaches around in whipping a line into shape quickly, Lotti studied the scouting reports on the San Mateo Bears' wishbone offense, read up on defense against that type of potentially explosive offense and came up with enough wrinkles to throw a shoutout, 7-0, at the bewildered Bears' Friday.

It was Westmoor's third consecutive shutout and San Mateo's second outing without a win. The Bears tied 14-all in their first game against Carmel. And for a team that lost virtually everything via graduation and had slim pickings from a 1-8 sophomore team the Ram coaching staff has put together one heck of a defensive football team.

Remember the 'I' formation offense? Turn it around on defense and you have the Westmoor defense against the wishbone. Two linebackers lined up directly in front of the center about two yards off the ball. And whatever way the offense went, so went the double coverage. It worked like a charm.

"I picked up that defense in a short article in a magazine recently and we installed it just for this game," Lotti said. "It looks good on paper but it still needed good execution by the players. And they did one line job."

Westmoor, admittedly not one of the stronger offensive units around, and San Mateo, an expected-to-be powerhouse that hasn't clicked yet, could still be battling between the 30's were it not for a senseless piling-on play assessed against the Bears in the third period.

On the Rams' first series after a scoreless first half, the Bears apparently had Westmoor stopped on fourth down on the SM 36. But a Bearcat defender piled on Westmoor's Nick LeBlanc after he had been thrown for a four-yard loss and a 15-yarder moved the ball to the 23 and a first down.

Seven plays later LeBlanc plunged over from the one and the scoring spurge for the night ended. But the defense went on and on.

Tackle Leo Riedermann, defensive halfback Lance Judd (one interception and one fourth down key stop in the last quarter, Daly City's own Judd-for-the-Defense) and linemen Jeff Snyder and Bob Ahuse stymied San Mateo to the tune of 28 yards rushing in the first half and only one first down. It wasn't much better after intermission as SM got only one other penalty-gained first down in the third period for a total of two in three quarters.

So well did the Westmoor defenders key on quarterback Mickey Williams that the quick Bearcats didn't even cross the line of scrimmage on an option until four minutes remained in the game.

And who says football players can't read?

San Mateo's defense had its moments, mostly in the first half. Westmoor tried to throw four times and none were dropped. Only one thought reached a Ram as the SM defensive halfbacks came up with three interceptions.

Larry Cron was the leading ground-gainer for San Mateo with 38 yards, 35 coming on one great run. Both Westmoor's LeBlanc, with 75 yards, and fullback John Hart, with 91 yards, managed to offset the wishbone offense with a bone-crushing, up-the-gut offense of their own.

RAM FROSH STYMIED

Westmoor fumbled away its one chance to crack the tough Capuchino brass-soph defense on this play. The Rams lost the ball on the Cap one. Two plays later Mustang Jay Ashley broke a quick trap up the middle for a 97-yard touchdown. Cap demolished the Rams, 47-0.

Le Pacini Wouldn't Take Chance on Him

(Second of a series)

When we left Dolph Camilli last week, he had just been purchased by the Cubs (1933) after a long apprenticeship in the Coast League, due mainly to the fact that no scouts were willing to take a chance on him after he suffered a severely broken leg early in his career.

Dolph finished out the tag-end of the '33 season with Chicago, and had a solid full rookie year the next season (267, 16 homers, 87 RBIs), splitting time between the Cubs and the Phillies. He then settled down for three outstanding years with the weak-sticker Phillies, compiling a composite record of 289 with an average of 27 homers and 88 RBIs per season. The biggest break of his career came when he was traded to the Dodgers for an obscure outfielder and the then big cash price of $50,000 in March of 1938.

What was ironic about the trade was that Dolph had held out in 1937 until mid-May, yet came in with his all-time highest batting average (.338) and one of his better home run years (27) while playing just 131 games.

As described last week, Camilli went on to become one of the most productive and popular Dodgers of all time.

ONE OF Camilli's biggest career disappointments came in 1942, when the Dodgers, apparently on their way to a second straight pennant, blew a 10-game lead to St. Louis. He attributes a large part of the collapse to Leo Durocher's insistence on playing Pete Newer after the renowned accident-prone slugger slammed his head against a center field wall in one of his classic jukes with immovable objects.

"Leo kept him out two or three days, but Pete had been having a fantastic year," recalls Dolph. "And Leo eventually felt he had to have him in there to hold out lead. But Pete must have been knocked pretty whacky, because after the accident, he just couldn't judge fly balls anymore, or buy a hit, either. We won 104 games that year, the Cards won 106, and I KNOW we lost more than just two or three games because Leo insisted on playing a physically incapacitated player. Hell, we had Angelo Gaian on the bench, and all we needed was a man out there who could catch simple fly balls and get an occasional hit, which Gaian could have done."

Dolph's oddest experience in baseball occurred in 1941, the year he won M.U.P. award as the only year the Dodgers won the pennant while he was with them.

With the season already well under way, he had hit only six home runs, and was playing in what seemed to him to be a complete state of exhaustion. His buddy, Cookie Lavaghetto, and the brass, and the Dodgers' second coach, Sam Hopkins, where five specialists had been traded the day before. But the results of the tests was a bottle of what they told Dolph were "fatigue pills." Dolph was skeptical. He had always been against pills.

HE REJOINED the club in Pittsburgh, sat out a game, and the next day in St. Louis was back in the lineup, still exhausted and beginning to suspect that maybe he had hit it, that at 34 he was finished. After the game that day, he and Lavaghetto went to a movie. Cookie left after the first show, because he had seen the second attraction, but Dolph stayed.

"I'll never forget that day," says Dolph fondly, as if cherishing the memory of an old friend. "I walked out of the movie theater, and began walking up the street. All of a sudden I felt as if somebody had stuck a needle in me and I had given me a transfusion. I suddenly felt great. The next day I hit two homers off a southpaw, Max Lanier, and went on from there to my greatest year in baseball."

Camilli had fun when he returned to the Pacific Coast League in 1944 as player-manager of the alkali, no-pitch Oakes and Acorns. Camilli, incidentally, was traded to Oakland from the Giants, to whom he had been traded the day before (more on that in a few paragraphs), for an unknown kid shortstop still on naval duty — Bill Rigney.

As noted, the Oaks could hit (Dolph, then 37, hit 289 that year, with 14 homers in 113 games), but their pitching staff had at one point fallen apart in Seattle, and he was the first base coach, a showman — announced that he would start the next game, a decision that filled the hall park Dolph, who had never before pitched professionally, went almost seven innings, giving up just two singles to a heavy-hitting Hollywood team before his arm went out on him and he had to remove himself.

After the game, Hollywood manager Bob Fancett told Camilli, "Hell, Dolph, you had more stuff than any of your pitchers I've seen this season."

Camilli finally came up with two pitchers that year and almost won the pennant. One was Manny Salvo, a reject from the Philadelphia Athletics. The other was Damon Hayes, a refugee from the Seattle shipyards.

"HOW I GOT HAYES was one of the strangest experiences of my career," says Dolph, still shaking his head in wonder. "One night we played in Seattle, and I'm in the first base dugout, and see a pitcher I hadn't seen before way down in Seattle's bullpen popping the ball, and I say to the batboy, who's that down there, and he says, 'Ah, some kid; he works in the shipyards and pitches a little batting practice.' So I say, 'Listen, kid, when he changes his windup in coming to the mound, that I like to talk to him, but don't let anybody hear you.'"

Hayes met Camilli in the clubhouse, and Dolph discovered that every club in the Coast League had had a look at him, and none of them had tumbled. Dolph invited Hayes to throw batting practice against the Oaks the next day, which Hayes did, and "Boy, he showed me some good stuff."

The next day Dolph signed him for a $500 bonus and $500 a month, not even bothering to ask for authorization from the front office. Hayes became Oakland's best pitcher that year, as he proved himself one of those rare commodities — a pitcher who can consistently win close games.

"He had good stuff, but he really did it with an uncanny knowledge of the hitters. Turns out he sat in the stands behind home plate for every Seattle home game and made a book on every hitter in the league."

Mentioned earlier was a trade involving Camilli, even though Dolph never played for the Giants. In July of 1943 Dolph having his worst year (246, 6 HRs, 43 RBIs) was traded with

Mills Just Misses

Mills and Riordan High schools played one of the books Saturday — the record book, the rule book and the case book — at Capuchino High School.

Every possible situation imaginable developed in the three-hour game which saw Mills give one of its finest offensive and defensive performances in many seasons.

Unfortunately for the Vikings, those moments lasted only three quarters, allowing Riordan to put on a fantastic fourth quarter rally to take a 34-32 victory in an emotional game.

Mills took the loss hard. And rightly so. The Vikings led the visiting Crusaders, 32-7, late in the third period. And in running up that 25-point bulge both of offense and defense had minutes of sheer brilliance.

There was quarterback Eric Nielson handing off to halfback Dave Weil on an apparent running play only to have Weil flick the ball back on a 15-yard scoring loss for the first score.

The next score must be a Mid-Peninsula League record. Skip Strathern stepped in front of an intended Riordan receiver in the end zone, tipped the pass forward and raced 101 yards up the sidelines for a 14-7 Mills' lead. The defense set up the next score also as Larry Jones recovered a Riordan fumble on the very next play setting up a three-play, 25-yard march for the 20-7 lead.

Jeff Shea then had his day in the sun. Shea recovered all other Riordan fumble, one of four the Vikes were to pick up plus two interceptions, and that led to Kurt McCracken's 11-yard run for 26-7.

An amazing sequence then ensued. Kevin Brown recovered (again) a Crusader fumble only to have Mills fumble the ball right back. But Strathern intercepted a Riordan pass on the next play and Shea countered 56 yards for what looked to be pure cake kicking.

Had Mills been able to battle just the Crusaders things might have been easier. But the Vikings were fighting with the officials all afternoon. In fact, Mills was red-flagged down no less than 12 times for 132 yards while Riordan, obviously fascinated by Mills' searing red, got caught once for five yards.

DURING THEIR first year in Grand American competition, the teams of Adams and Sherwood (Dave and Bob), of Daly City, have made their presence known. Running in the 71 Maverick in the Street Eliminator category, they are currently in fourth place in the National Points standings. They hope to improve at Fremont, October 6-7-8.

pitcher Johnny Allen to the Giants for pitchers Bill Lohman and Bill Sayles and infielder Joe Oregno. Why didn't Dolph report?

"THERE WERE a number of reasons. One was that I was at the end of my career and couldn't play every day as I had been. I was beginning to feel like I was packing a lead around with me, and I needed a rest, which I finally got at All-Star break. With two days' rest, I came back with two homers in Boston, a tough home run park, went to Cincy and hit well, but then after a week or so of everyday playing, I was right back to where I had started — tired. I needed a good week's rest, but I wasn't getting it.

"So I got traded, and the Giants said they would give me a raise, which I didn't care about, because at the tax bracket I was in them, the extra few bucks would have gone to the government.

"I told them I wasn't going to pull a Lou Gehrig and play myself into poor health for a few bucks. Then Mel Ott (the Giants' manager) asked to have a meeting with me, which we had. But he never offered me a week's rest. All the Giants could think of was, Ott said, 'Jammy' (an in-house word). The Giants had a series coming up with the Dodgers — in fact eight more games with the Dodgers — and they figured that all the Brooklyn fans who had picked Branch Rickey for trading me would be out with blood in their eyes and money in their pockets.

"Well, I never did report, and even though we're friends, I don't think Horace Stenham has ever forgiven me."

(TO BE CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK)

Women's Slow Pitch League: Tie for Lead

The Women's slow-pitch league, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department is being led by the Datsun Swingers and Shakey's Flakies. Each team has a 2-0 record.

The Swingers scored their second win when they defeated the Sisters 18-3 with final tally of 18-3. Barbara Gallwitz and Linda Knowles supported the Swingers' efforts with a home-run each. Kathy McBride connected for three hits and two RBIs. Nadine Ingridson rounded out the Swingers with four RBIs. The Sisters is came back with a strong rally but were unable to overtake the Swingers.

Ed Cordero walked home with an easy victory over the Righteous Together Women 20-0. Cordero pitcher Marilyn Schnake was credited with the only shut-out of the season. Lynn Ryan and Patti Rowell each had four hits with Naomi Tuttle going for five. The Righteous Together Women were unable to muster enough offense or defense to score.

Shakey's Flakies scored their second win when they defeated the Mission Rebels 8-4. The Flakies were strong at the plate with Dianne Pierce connecting for 2 hits, Karen Ward for 2, and Sherry Garner with two hits and a homer. The Mission Rebels threatened the Flakies when Gloria Stamps drove in two runs with a triple and Juanita Aranda hit a double. Despite the rally, the Flakies pulled ahead and held their lead.

Surprise in Pacifica

Pacifica firemen Saturday morning answered an emergency call and found that a young woman had just given birth to a daughter.

The father, Bruce Grantham, 779 Prairie Creek Drive, was surprised. He had called the police to obtain an ambulance for his wife, Gwen, 24, and did not realize that firemen, whose station was nearby, also took care of that kind of emergency.

While waiting for the ambulance, firemen took care of the baby, wrapped her in a clean pillow case and calmed the excited couple. The ambulance sped mother and baby to Peninsula Hospital.

Testimonial for SSF Postmaster

A testimonial dinner was held Saturday at the Redwood Inn, 380 South Airport Boulevard, South San Francisco, for retiring South San Francisco postmaster Virgil Ringue.

Ringue stepped down as of September 22, after 22 years as postmaster. During that time he reports his receipts to have risen from a mere $150,000 the first year to $4 million a year. His staff rose from 35 employees to a high of 174.

The post office in South San Francisco grew from its old-fashioned classical building on Linden and Grand Avenue to its three-office network, with headquarters at 381 South Airport Boulevard, where it serves its biggest users, in the industrial section. Other offices are the Baden Station and its two-county station at Westborough and Winston Manor.

Ringue was an official at Bethlehem Steel Company before becoming postmaster. He served on the South San Francisco Unified School Board 1949-52. The board adopted a resolution of commendation honoring Ringue Monday night.

He also served on the Planning Commission and the boards of the Chamber of Commerce, Cancer Drive, Multiple Sclerosis, and various World War II food and clothing drives.

Ringue's parents brought him to South San Francisco in 1916, and he has lived here since

Blind Woman Theft Victim

A 58-year-old San Bruno woman is out $250 today, money, mostly in $20 bills, that she had kept in a bank book in her purse.

Police said the purse had been hanging on a doorknob in the woman's home. She told police numerous persons had access to the money, but she did not know who took it. The woman is blind.

Pacifica OKs Bus Shelters

Pacifica city councilmen have authorized installation of bus shelters at Army Reserve and Fairmont shopping centers, upon recommendation of the Transportation and Highways committee.

Mayor Stan Farber, however, questioned why Pacifica's other two major shopping centers were omitted.

"Why are you leaving Sharp Park and Pacific Manor people out in the cold?" he asked.

Mayor Stan Farber, however, questioned why Pacifica's other two major shopping centers were omitted.

The THC was asked to study installation of further shelters, wherever needed, as well as the stability of the bus firm.

It is estimated that the shelters will cost about $300 each.

2 Gunmen Rob Market

Two gunmen held up the Grand Leader supermarket on San Mateo Avenue in San Bruno Friday and fled after taking some $600 from a cash register and an undisclosed amount of cash from a meat section operator.

The pair entered the store shortly after 9 p.m. and told owner Eugene Borell, "Alright, buster, give me your money to us."

After grabbing the cash from a nearby register the men, armed with large caliber handguns, held up meat section operator Tony Pisella.

They fled to a car in a rear parking lot, police said.

Man Arrested In DC Crash

A San Francisco man was arrested in Daly City Sept. 26 on felony drunk driving charges after the car he was driving struck and injured an 18-year-old bicyclist about 8 p.m. Ventura Rivera, 69, of 251 Broad Street, was picked up by police a short distance from the scene of the accident at the corner of Eighty-seventh and Southgate Avenues. He was booked into city jail.

Injured in the accident was James H. LaCruz, 18, of 831 Thornhill Drive, Broadmoor. He was taken to Mary's Help Hospital where authorities reported he is in good condition.

Youth Held For Assault

Daly City detectives Thursday arrested Dean R. Heagney, 19, of Millbrae, on charges stemming from an alleged attempted rape involving a 15-year-old girl at Westmont Park last Sunday.

Police said the juvenile was attacked inside the park, but managed to escape.

Subsequent investigation by detectives led to the arrest of Heagney on the charge of assault with intent to commit rape, police said.

RESCUES PILOTS

USS DULUTH — Navy Airman Denton C. Stepp, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Stepp of 1040 Rio Vista Drive, Pacifica, is serving aboard the amphibious transport USS Duluth, whose helicopters rescued two downed Navy pilots from Haiphong Harbor in North Vietnam.

Incidentally, a statement in the council's position paper says that "... there is no information in city records ..." about Karzewski ever making a request for an investigation.

However, in a letter dated June 27, 1971, one of many to Karzewski, after he went into his patrol business, wrote to Chief Nelson, there was a reference to the Tremaine-Nelson-Karzewski personnel evaluation sessions.

Karzewski wrote in part: "... As you may recall, before my 'retirement' I was appointed to the slushy manner in which burglary investigations were being conducted and asked that an investigation be made into the Criminal Investigation Division."

At that time, it also had come to light that Karzewski had sought a disability rating for a back injury that he sustained in the "Linda Mar riot" of 1966.

Karzewski spent 13 weeks in the hospital in 1967 due to back injury. That's the only time I was in the hospital because of my back," said Karzewski.

According to Karzewski, the only reason he sought the disability rating, which was done, he said, on the advice of his doctor, was to cover himself for possible future medical disability payments. He said he had no intentions of retiring.

The rating apparently was sought, however, without going through city channels. And it apparently gave the city the lever it needed to ease Karzewski out. According to Karzewski, he was told by Tremaine that with a disability rating he couldn't go on being employed as an able-bodied policeman.

"I was told to sign the report under protest if I wished, but it needed to ease Karzewski out," said Karzewski.

Karzewski, in the meantime, had consulted Attorney Sid Loran to appeal the personnel report. "On the advice of my attorney, I decided to retire," said Karzewski. "He said I could appeal, and maybe stay on the job. But what would I gain?"

Loran confirmed that Karzewski had consulted him, and that he did in fact advise Karzewski to take the retirement. Karzewski said retirement pay comes to $417.25 a month, "not a large sum when feeding three kids."

Loran said, "I'm convinced that the fundamental honesty of the police department, Tremaine and Karzewski was no in question." Each did what he thought was right.

Later, Karzewski was to be quoted as saying that before his retirement, "a high ranking official, who has since retired, told me that the Pacifica Police Department didn't want me starting a patrol service in this town, and they were going to make things miserable for me."

That "high-ranking official," says Karzewski, was Chief Tremaine.

"The only thing I would say, is the record speaks for itself," said Tremaine. "I'm out of law enforcement work, and out of Pacifica. I prefer not to get involved with any controversy."
